RRS User Group Shares Their Excitement for Annual Release

Boston –17 November 2015 – Solutions Atlantic’s customers came together for its annual user conference to discuss reporting obligations under the awaited Amended Transparency Directive (TDA) and to get a glimpse of the much anticipated Regulatory Reporting System (RRS) user interface enhancements.

Solutions Atlantic invited Claire Farley, Head of Regulatory Products for aosphere LLP to speak to the many changes coming as a result of the amended Transparency Directive. Claire’s overview and roadmap for country compliance under the Directive sparked many questions and continues to do so as countries slowly meet the new requirements under the specific deadline. To help customers comply with TDA, Solutions Atlantic released a canonical rule that is a basic ‘copy out’ of the TDA technical requirements. This canonical rule will help RRS customers, who build their own rules as part of the Regulatory Reporting System , to check their work before releasing their updated rules.

Most of the meeting was spent on presenting the new user interface which introduced user defined views, filters and flags, heat mapping, notes and to-dos. Users are eager to take advantage of the new interface which will allow them to truly customize their user experience and workflow. “We’re eager to implement this new release to take advantage of these additional features which we believe will streamline our disclosure process”, said a compliance officer from a global investment firm. “Not only will we be able to easily identify obligations but we will cut down on the time to review disclosures – saving us precious time to meet already demanding disclosure deadlines.”

Amidst client implementations, regulatory updates and the TDA release, the team at Solutions Atlantic spent countless hours scoping, designing and developing this user led annual release. “This release is a culmination of hard work by the Solutions Atlantic team and commitment from our user community to provide necessary input and feedback throughout the development cycle. It is rewarding to the team to be able to showcase their efforts to the user group and receive their praise firsthand”, said Mitch Greess, CEO of Solutions Atlantic.
